TRIPLE GOLD

Kinsel and Sister Rewrite WPRA Records En Route to Third Consecutive World Title

By Ted Harbin

Five days after earning her third straight Montana Silversmiths gold buckle, Hailey Kinsel was still a bit in awe of what she'd accomplished over the 10 nights of the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo.

"It is still very surreal," said Kinsel of Cotulla, Texas, who has finished among the top two in all four of her NFR qualifications. "I don't know how much it's set in. It was an exhausting NFR, an exhausting year, and it was so stressful going into the finals. We didn't know what kind of pattern we were going to run, whether it was going to be a standard or a smaller pattern. We had to prepare without knowing.

"I think my body is still decompressing from all that stress. It's a relief that we were able to do what we did. To pull off a world title is definitely something I have worked for. With all the challenges this year, we could finally see the light at the end of the tunnel when we got to the NFR. It's exciting to look back on it now."

What she pulled off was to be the first woman in WPRA history to win the world title, the average title, the RAM Top Gun award and post the fastest time of the NFR all in the same year. Along the way, she broke her own record with a 16.56-second run on a standard pattern, shattering her mark of .63 at Dodge City, Kansas, in August. She also set a new standard in NFR earnings with $270,615.

Oh, and don't forget that she came within a whisker of beating her own season earnings mark of $350,700, finishing the COVID-infected season – which featured far fewer rodeos than any season before – just $1,624 shy of her mark she set in 2018.

“I had my best NFR, and that makes the biggest difference,” she said. “For me to be close to that in a year like this, in a year with the big payouts being canceled, it speaks for how well things went at the NFR. You don't plan on having an NFR like that all the time.

“It makes you wonder what my horse could have done this year if we didn't have so many rodeos canceled. If we could have gone to a typical schedule of rodeos, I think she could have more earnings to her name.”

That's DM Sissy Hayday, the speedy 9-year-old palomino rocket mare everyone knows best as Sister, which should wear the gold that matches her color. Kinsel may own the three trophy buckles, but Sister has secured her place in barrel racing lore.

Kinsel and her prized mount have become the first tandem to claim three straight world titles since Kristie Peterson and Bozo did it from 1996-98. The top of the line, though, is Charmayne James and Scamper, who won 10 in a row.

“If it happens, it happens, but my only goal is to keep her sound and keep her at her best for as long as possible,” Kinsel said of Sister. “It's amazing when you look at the pairs that have run down the alley from the Thomas & Mack to the days in Oklahoma City to Arlington, and we had great horsepower that ran this year.

“I never would have tagged one person to win the average, win the world and have the fastest time. Even in the years they didn't keep track of who had the fast time, we all still knew. When you have horses of this caliber coming in no matter where it is, it's going to be a good race.”

It was a horserace before the NFR started in its 2020 home at Globe Life Field in Arlington, Texas, home of Major League Baseball's Texas Rangers. Brittany Pozzi-Tonozzi entered

Hailey Kinsel (second from left) captured her first Wrangler NFR average title with a total time of 170.95 seconds on 10 runs. That included a record setting run in the eighth round when she and Sister stopped the clock in 16.56 seconds, the fastest time ever record on a WPRA standard patter at a PRCA rodeo. WPRA photo by Kenneth Springer the championship event No. 1 in the WPRA ProRodeo world standings with $86,725. She held an $8,264 lead over Kinsel, who won on opening night with a 17.18-second run.

At that point, Kinsel reclaimed the top spot and never relinquished it. Sister seemed to thrive in the arena made into the shape of a smaller baseball diamond and the cloverleaf track established on a standard pattern with plenty of room between the barrels and the blue NFR panels.

Through 10 nights of the sport's championship event, Kinsel and Sister dominated. They won five rounds and finished as the runners-up in Rounds 2, 7 and 10. One of the two nights Kinsel didn't place happened in the sixth round, when she opted to ride Cassidy Kruse's 8-year-old sorrel gelding, Leroy. It was done as a way to give Sister a break while also utilizing a horse that Kinsel believed would handle being on the bottom of the ground a little better.

“The very reason she was able to run so well the final four nights is because of that night off,” she said. “The sixth round was not the kind of dirt she could gain confidence on. With this being on the standard pattern, it was a longer run than she needed. She was tired. She was working perfect. God blessed me in a lot of ways of knowing in the past that if you give a horse a minute when they're working perfect, they're going to thank you for it.

Hailey Kinsel celebrated winning the world title, average title, fast time award and RAM Top Gun award with those that mean the most to her – her family! This is the first time a WPRP member has won all four of those awards in the same year. WPRP photo by Kenneth Springer

“That definitely made a difference. We had a lot left to go, and I needed a fresh horse for the final four rounds. I just wanted to make a solid run, and I knew she had a lot left in the tank.”

Kinsel had two nights of back-to-back go-round wins: the fourth and fifth rounds, then the eighth and ninth. The latter virtually clinched the world title for the Cotulla cowgirl, but the .56 in Round 8 lit Globe Life Arena – and the barrel racing world – on fire.

“I just keep thinking God just keeps giving me good things, and when you think that’s it, that is enough, then there is another,” Kinsel said after her eighth-round run. “My horse has just been so amazing, and I just give her all the credit.

“Setting the record in Dodge City was a great time in my life and really needed to do well then, and tonight I just knew I needed to ride with confidence, and Sister took care of the rest.”

She considers the yellow speedster a one-in-a-million horse, and Sister likely is also Kinsel’s once-in-a-lifetime partner. Over their four NFRs together, Kinsel has earned $759,019. That’s an incredible career for most cowgirls who run barrels for a living, and she’s done it in just 40 go-rounds.

It’s a testament to the ability Sister possesses, but it’s proof of the work that is done at home when there are no spotlights, there are no announcers and the fundamentals of the pattern and riding come into play over and over again. It’s the time Kinsel has spent lunging her horses and riding them through various workouts.

Setting records is nothing new for her or the fabulous horse, and it’s become more of a standard for them. Both are wily and crafty – words used for veterans but fitting even though both are just still relatively young.

“There’s a lot of planning that goes into having a horse like this,” Kinsel said. “It’s not so much what you’re doing in your run. There’s a lot in having your angles perfect. Sister is very manual, and she lets me move around someone else’s track or to set up the pocket the way we need. You can adjust things on her very well.

“There was a whole lot of jockeying and changing. The majority of success we had goes back to the months of preparation for doing well there. I didn’t have a clue what the setup would be like, but I did things specifically for her and what we thought it was going to be like. We did a lot of planning when it comes to conditioning. I really think she was one of the most prepared horses for what we faced.”

It showed ... night after night after night. She finished the challenging 2020 campaign with $349,076 and outdistanced Pozzi Tonozzi by nearly $148,000. Only five women – Kinsel, Pozzi Tonozzi, Jill Wilson, Emily Miller-Beisel and Jimmie Smith – earned more than that sum for the entire season.

When she arrived in north Texas for the two weeks of events surrounding the sport’s finale, she was outfitted with back No. 12, her place on the overall money list. That hit her pretty close to the heart.

“I was talking about it with my farrier, and it reminded me of the 12 disciples,” said Kinsel, displaying her faith for all to see. “I likened it to walking on water: You can’t look down; you just have to have your head focused on Jesus. There was a correlation to what Peter was doing, trusting his walking.

“You just have to trust the path Jesus has put you on and follow it.”

That conviction has carried her across many places and to many awards. It also guided her to a beautiful palomino mare that has been changing the way people think about barrel racing and what horses can do. That's why she opted off the traditional flag horse for her NFR average championship victory lap and stayed on Sister.

"That horse deserves all the credit, and she deserves a victory lap every time," she said. "This year, in so many ways, had looked like it was not going to be something worth taking pictures of or remembering at the end of it. I am so grateful not to just be here right now but for the entire journey.

"The phrase, 'God turns graves into gardens,' the same God that has been with me in the valleys, and I feel like she, Sis, is the prettiest flower in my garden right now. She means the world to me, so I couldn't be more thankful."

Kinsel and Sister own the NFR records in both Las Vegas and Arlington, and they've managed to do some great things no matter the arena in which they play their game. It's a statement that they are the top two powers in the sport and could be for a long time. For now, though, the Texas cowgirl will just soak in everything she can and enjoy each ride she gets on her fabulous partner.

Of course, a Texan winning the gold in Texas will always mean something extraordinary to her.

"It's definitely special, especially if it doesn't come back here," Kinsel said of Globe Life Field. "To be able to know that I did it here in my home state is amazing. I knew she was going to love a standard pattern in Arlington.

"For her to show off what she's able to do in the smallest pattern we run on at the Thomas & Mack, and then for her to do it on the standard pattern, it means a lot. She was still able to win no matter where we ran."

That is the true definition of a world champion.

Between 1976 and 1978, the method of choosing the World Champion Barrel Racer was changed to coincide with the method used by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. The 15 barrel racers with the top earnings during the regular season qualified for the National Finals Rodeo, then held in Oklahoma City. The barrel racer who won the most money at the NFR alone was named the world champion. During the years this system was in use, the NFR champion was always different from the high money winner for the year.

Before 1976 and since 1979, the world champion has been determined by total season earnings, including both regular-season and NFR earnings.
