ROPING DIVISION

The Roping Division features the best female ropers in the WPRA competing in team roping (header and heeler), tie-down roping and breakaway roping. World titles are awarded in each division as well as in the all-around category in which a competitor competes in more than one event at WPRA sanctioned events winning more money than the rest of the field.

In 2020, the breakaway roping division was divided into a ProRodeo and co-approval division much like barrel racing in which the world champion was determined by money won at PRCA events only following the conclusion of the National Finals

Breakaway Roping (NFR) and a national champion was crowned based on co-approved standings following the WPRA World Finals. Please note prior to 2020 the WPRA World Champion Breakaway Roper was determined using money won at any event the WPRA sanctioned. The first WPRA World Champion Breakaway Roper was Becky Berggren in 1974.

This section features the 2020 World Champions as well as listings of past champions not only in the roping events but in the roughstock events of bareback riding and bull riding, when that was offered through the WPRA.

A JOURNEY TO REMEMBER

Crawford wins 20th world title while six months pregnant at Wrangler National Finals Breakaway Roping

By Neal Reid

There's little doubt that, of all of her 20 world championships, Jackie Crawford likely will remember her most recent one more than any other.

The 38-year-old Stephenville, Texas, roper overcame a self-imposed no-time and excelled despite being six months pregnant to win the 2020 WPRA Breakaway Roping world title by less than $2,000 and put an exclamation point on a year that was unlike any other. Crawford—who is due in March with her second child, a girl she will name Journey—finished third in the four-woman finals to end the season with $47,185, just $1,925 more than second-place Martha Angelone, to earn championship No. 20.

It was the culmination of a frenzied three days at Globe Life Field in Arlington, Texas, Dec. 8-10, and a poignant moment as breakaway roping was officially added to the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo lineup for the first time.

"Trying to find the words to reflect back on the 2020 NFBR, and of everything I could say, what keeps coming to mind is simply: We did it!" Crawford wrote on her Facebook page on Dec. 16. "I have never been more proud to be part of a group of people in my life. Not just these 15, but every person who has been behind this movement to add breakaway roping to this level.

"To the people who made this happen... You will never know how much we appreciate you being the first to take a risk and be bold enough to step out of the conventional views of rodeo and not be scared to take a step toward bringing more to the sport of rodeo and the Western industry."

Crawford's march toward her historic triumph almost ended in Round 5, when she called an illegal catch on herself even though the judges had not given her a no-time. She detailed what happened on Facebook.

"I had a back leg in the loop when it broke off and the judges didn't catch it," Crawford wrote. "You can't blame these guys, their job is so hard trying to make these calls on such split second decisions! I knew I had a leg in it, went back and told them, and they listened with open minds and gave me a no time after the round was over. It was the right thing to do all the way around!"

She went on to qualify for the eight-woman semifinals after 10 rounds of roping, then sealed her championship by advancing to the four-roper finals. Crawford finished third in the finals, won two of the 10 rounds and placed in four others to earn $25,536 at Globe Life Field and secure the gold buckle.

Crawford couldn't hold back the tears during the post-event champion's interview—conducted by Hailey Kinsel days before she would go on to win her third straight barrel racing world title—on the Wrangler Network after the dust had settled in Round 10. Kinsel's question to Crawford noted the significance of the moment.

"To be able to put you on this stage where the rest of the world can see who you are, what you stand for and what you've done for this sport, what can you say for this moment right now?" Kinsel asked.

Crawford was still in a bit of shock at the magnitude of it all.

"I think that all of us are put here for a reason, God places talents in our lives and we have a purpose, and I'm still trying to find out why He's putting me on this journey and letting me win these things," said Crawford, who began roping as a teenager. "I just hope I can fulfill the purpose He has me here for, because this is one amazing journey I'm getting to be on. Little Journey is getting to be on it too, and she was giving me some kicks today, so she's excited.

"I'm fortunate to be able to be here, be in front of the camera and win this thing, but the credit that is due to so many people who have been behind this is so unbelievable. To the fans and everybody who has produced this, I just can't thank you enough for all of us from the bottom of our hearts. Thank you for adding breakaway to the pro rodeos."

Kinsel praised her friend and fellow leader in the realm of women's rodeo.

"You've done so much for this sport," Kinsel said. "You represent what we want to embody as women in rodeo. I want to congratulate you as the first ever world champion crowned through the National Finals Breakaway Roping."

For the Top 15 breakaway ropers, this year's NFBR was filled with camaraderie and togetherness, according to Crawford.

"I believe every single girl stepped up and did their part in displaying just how great our event can be," wrote Crawford, who also has won multiple team roping, tie-down roping and all-around world titles. "That was amazing roping and so fun to watch! I wish everyone could have experienced the positive atmosphere that was going on behind the scenes as well.

"Even though we are all competing against each other, every person there was on the same team—to reach a goal even bigger than the one right before us those three days. Those few days with you all will be something I cherish forever!"

Crawford also tipped her hat to the industry as a whole for welcoming breakaway roping to the forefront of the sport on its grandest stage.

"To all the other events...Thank y'all for being so supportive of us!" she wrote. "Thank you to the barrel racers with the foresight and confidence to encourage other women. Thank you to all the men who have been so supportive and uplifting to all of us. To be so accepting shows a lot of character and love for the sport of rodeo as a whole."

"So many people think this has been something that has come about in the last few years, but those of us who know better know that this has been a battle for decades. Not just to get breakaway on bigger platforms, but to get roping acknowledged within our own association has been a feat in itself. We are so lucky to be the ones that are reaping the benefits of a lot of hard work from a lot of amazingly talented women."

And she was quick to highlight the trailblazers who came before her and the other current stars of the sport for laying the foundation for greatness.

"I hope everyone knows that we know where so much credit is due," Crawford wrote. "Not only is it due to the women before us, but the husbands and boyfriends that support women in roping, the producers that have produced breakaway ropings long before they were a big deal, the associations that weren't scared to add us as an event long ago, the WCRA for being the first professional association to add us as an equal event for big money, the American for showcasing us on such a big stage, to the committees that gathered up extra money to add us into your ProRodeos, the judges and stock contractors for being so good about everything, and so many more!"

Crawford now will enjoy family time with her husband—11-time Wrangler NFR team roper Charly Crawford—son, Creed, and stepdaughter, Kaydence, then welcome Journey to the family in March. She eloquently summed up how this title was the realization of a vision she had for herself.

"One year ago I wrote about a dream I had," she wrote. "It may be a year earlier, and not the Thomas and Mack like in my dream, but those yellow chutes, that first round win, and this gold buckle sure matched up pretty sweetly. Globe Life Field and the city of Arlington were the stuff dreams were made of this year!"

Kelsie Chace added her eighth WPRA World title to her resume in the form of an all-around title. Chace previously won the all-around title in 2012 and 2017. Her other titles have come in the tie-down roping (2012, 2018) and breakaway roping (2017-2019). WPRA photos by James Phifer, Rodeobum.com

RESUME BUILDER

Chace Captures 2020 All-Around Title

By Joe Kusek

In August, Kelsie Chace purchased a new home, a 30-acre spread in Dublin, Texas.

The new homestead is a short distance southwest of Stephenville, Texas where Chace had spent the last six years living with Jackie Crawford and her family.

Since then, Chace has spent much of her time sprucing up the new home. She's put up an 80-foot by 220-foot arena with 150 feet of it covered, tore down some old calf pens and has done a little bit of everything else that needs to be done around the place.

"Mowing, lots of mowing," Chace said with a soft chuckle. "I enjoy working around the house. I like to work on stuff."

She also found time to keep her roping schedule and with it, find the perfect centerpiece for the living room.

A brand-new shiny WPRA All-Around championship saddle.

Chace earned money in all three roping disciplines – breakaway roping, tie-down roping and team roping – at the WPRA World Finals in the Show Pavilion at the Extraco Events Center in Waco, Texas, Nov. 13-15 to win the all-around by the closest of margins.

"I honestly like all of it," she said of trying to pick a favorite roping event.

Chace earned $7,870 in the 2020 all-around race, enough to hold off teenager Gracie Gambino of Lindale, Texas by $171. Good friend and roping partner Crawford, the World Finals all-around winner, was just $248 behind in the final standings.

ROPING DIVISION

"It was awesome," said of Chace of collecting her third WPRA all-around title. She also won in 2012 and 2017. "Of course, the all-around is in the back of your mind. Going into it, I knew I had an outside chance. I won some money early in the season and that helped. It all comes down to who has a better finals."

It was Chace's eighth WPRA year-end title overall. The Oklahoma native also has two tie-down roping titles (2012, 2018) and three breakaway roping championships (2017-2019) on her resume. She finished second to J.J. Hampton in the 2020 breakaway roping standings and was third in tie-down roping, seventh for team roping heelers and ninth for team roping headers.

Chace and Crawford won the WPRA World Finals team roping average title, posting consistent times of 7.9, 7.3 and 7.5 through three rounds of competition for a total of 22.7 seconds.

"We did well. It was pretty sweet to get the win," Chace said. "We were second last year with some young horses. We came back this year with seasoned horses and they were ready. This year, we made sharp turns and got the job done."

Chace came agonizingly close to earning a whole lot more money in Waco.

She tied for second in the first two rounds of breakaway roping with times of 2.5 and 2.4 seconds and was leading the average going into the third round but missed on her loop.

In tie-down roping, she won the first round (12.5 seconds) and third round (13.3) but encountered trouble in the second round. "My calf got up," Chace said.

She rode her horse Little Man, a 15-year-old chestnut gelding for both the breakaway and tie-down roping. Chace was aboard Ticket, a horse she borrowed, for the team roping.

"Little Man, he's just so fast. He runs hard and stops hard. He gets me going. He knows how to do his job," she said.

Entering the World Finals Chace knew the all-around race was close. She turned to her mother Lisa to find out who was where during the event.

"I'm a numbers girl," said Chace. "My mom asked, 'Do you want the break down?' I told her I've just got to do my job."

Ironically, Chace didn't know if she had accomplished her job. She left Waco for another event in the Dallas area before the final numbers were tabulated.

"I didn't know for a couple of hours. I was kind of panicked," Chace said. "There was a lot of waiting."

She was sitting in her truck when Crawford texted her the good news. "She told me, 'Good job pardner. You won the year-end and I won the finals,'" Chace remembered. "I was pretty excited. The all-around championship saddle is something I will cherish for sure."

With the transition in address, Chace was listed from both Cherokee, Oklahoma and Dublin in the WPRA World Finals results.

"I'm an Okie," said the graduate of Southwestern Oklahoma State with another laugh. She earned a bachelor's degree in interdisciplinary studies and a master's degree in sports management. "It's hard to take the Okie out of the girl. If people ask where I'm from, it's Oklahoma. Where I live, Dublin."

And she's already planning her 2021 season.

"I'm hoping to go to more rodeos next year for the breakaway roping," said Chace. "I want to go to the National Finals Rodeo next year. And go to the WPRA World Finals again, no doubt, and do it again."

TEAMWORK MAKES THE DREAM WORK

Thompson and DeSalvo Rope 2020 Team Roping World Title

By Joe Kusek

Whitney DeSalvo knows.

When DeSalvo backs in the box, waiting for the steer to break free into the arena, she knows exactly where partner Hope Thompson will throw her rope and know where the steer is going to turn.

"Her deal is the same thing every time," said DeSalvo of Thompson's loops. "I just know what she is going to do."

DeSalvo paused.

"Ninety-nine percent if something goes wrong, it's on me. No, make that 100 percent," she finished with a laugh.

Those watching Thompson and DeSalvo know things rarely go wrong for the talented team roping duo.

Riding the crest of a season-defining win at the Bob Feist Invitational earlier in the summer, Thompson and DeSalvo won the WPRA year-end team roping titles at the World Finals, Nov. 14-15 at the Extraco Events Center in Waco, Texas.

It is the fourth consecutive team roping heeling title for DeSalvo who calls Monticello, Arkansas home.

"Yeah, it's pretty special. It's a pretty big honor," DeSalvo said of claiming the championship saddle and buckle four consecutive seasons.

DeSalvo finished with $35,172 won for 2020, well ahead of reserve champion Annette Stahl, of Salt Flat, Texas who had $22,727. Rylie Smith, of Whitsett, Texas was the rookie of the year.

It is the second team roping heading title for Thompson of Abilene, Texas and third WPRA championship overall. She and DeSalvo also swept the team roping titles in 2017. Thompson won the WPRA breakaway roping world title in 2013.

"It never gets old," said Thompson of adding more championship hardware. “It’s as special as the first.”

Thompson closed 2020 with $33,307 won, ahead of friend and horse training business partner Lari Dee Guy who had $29,132. Bethanie Shofner of Las Cruces, New Mexico was the team roping header rookie of the year.

“Whitney and I have roped together for many years now” Thompson continued. “I’ve been fortunate to have won a lot with her. Knowing she’s back in the box, my confidence level is at a high level. I know if I just do my job, I know she will do her job and that gives us a chance to win.

“There is a chemistry there.”

That roping chemistry wasn’t concocted in a science lab. It’s from a combination of talent, hard work and a deep respect for one another.

“I feel it’s not just our friendship or chemistry,” said DeSalvo. “It’s knowing when we back in the box, we have a shot to win. Hope is a tremendous roper.”

Thompson traded platitudes.

“First and foremost we’re friends,” Thompson said. “Whitney is a natural. She is a friend who works hard and wants to be the best. I know how hard Whitney has prepared and she knows how hard I have prepared.”

The pair drove into Waco with comfortable leads in the standings. But that didn’t temper their competitive fire.

“Sure, there is a comfort zone there, knowing you’re probably going to win,” said Thompson. “But the competitor in you always wants to win. You want to make sure you do well.”

The two opened the WPRA World Finals by winning the first round with a time of 6.3 seconds.

“Even with the BFI (money) we still went at it,” said DeSalvo. “At that point, I feel with the lead, we looked at trying to win as much money as we could.”

However, the pair struggled in the next two rounds, with Thompson breaking the barrier in the second round and DeSalvo only catching one leg in the third. They still managed to place sixth in the average.

DeSalvo also roped with Jimmi Jo Montera of Greeley, Colorado, placing second in the second round and third in the average. Kelsie Chace, of Dublin, Texas and Jackie Crawford, of Stephenville, Texas were the team roping average champions at the Finals. Crawford also placed second with Jessica Remsburg of Leighton, Alabama.

And DeSalvo had to endure some horse drama before the two competed in their first run. Her horse LJ, came up injured right before DeSalvo and Thompson were to rope.

“He came up limping,” DeSalvo said. “I jumped on him to trot him around and his head was bobbing up and down. I didn’t have time to change horses. I had to ride him and hope for the best. I didn’t know how it was going to go.”

She would be aboard her primary horse, Becky, for the final two rounds. DeSalvo also rode the nine-year-old sorrel mare during her big money payday at the BFI.

"She runs hard and is easy to catch on," said DeSalvo. "But she has an attitude ... a personality for sure. She grinds her teeth when she's mad or nervous. It's like nails on a chalkboard. I tell her, 'If you weren't so good, I wouldn't have anything to do with you.'"

Thompson, who also qualified for the inaugural National Finals Breakaway Roping, rode Andre, an eight-year-old sorrel gelding named for his size with a nod to the professional wrestler Andre the Giant.

"He scores really well," Thompson said of her four-legged partner. "His reaction time is good and he paces the steer really well. He loves his job."

"He is kind of funny. He gets excited and pumped up when the music starts playing. He likes attention and to be told when he's done well."

Thompson and DeSalvo garnered plenty of attention by winning the Charlie 1 Horse All-Girls Challenge during the BFI at the Lazy E Arena in Guthrie, Oklahoma.

The pair each pocketed $15,000 for the win and both raised the bar.

DeSalvo placed 1-2-3 in the category, placing second with Guy and third with Audrey Hart to earn a whopping $28,875 at the event. Thompson also placed sixth to collect $21,000 at the BFI.

"I am just so thankful to the people in rodeo industry who dang sure did their part to give us a chance to compete," said Thompson.

"In rodeo, I've been blessed. It's time to get back to work."

DeSalvo is still mulling over her plans for 2021.

"Not sure what it's going to look like next year," she said. "I am appreciative of everything we've done and everybody who gave us these opportunities to compete."

"I have some new goals. I don't want to get stuck on the ladder. I have some other things I want to accomplish. I want to try and climb the ladder a little more."

TEEN TWO-FER

Phenom Gambino adds another world title to growing resume

By Neal Reid

The words teenager and legacy rarely appear in the same sentence, but in the case of Montanna-Gracie Gambino, the pairing is appropriate.

The Lindale, Texas, cowgirl took the rodeo world by storm last year after earning a tie-down roping world championship, and the terrific teen added title No. 2 at this year's WPRA World Finals Rodeo, Nov. 14-15, in Waco, Texas. Aboard her trusty horse Grayman, Gambino finished third in the final round to secure fourth place in the average and win the tie-down roping title by the slimmest of margins—a lunch special $9.76 over average champion Tanegai Zilverberg of Holabird, South Dakota.

It was a stressful and nail-biting affair from start to finish, and Gambino was both relieved and shocked to win another championship before her 19th birthday on Dec. 12.

"It's surreal. I was really trying to focus on competing and not worry about the numbers too much, but the numbers did matter to me," said Gambino, who added $1,298 to her 2020 earnings in tie-down roping at the Finals. "When everything was over, we added it up in our heads. I honestly did not think I'd won it. Then, when they posted it, it was unreal."

"I couldn't explain the feeling that was coming over all of us when my name was there on top."

Gambino won the second round in 15.1 seconds and cashed in the final round on her way to the crown, with Zilverberg easily taking the average in 55.3 seconds. It turns out Gambino's 26.7-second run in the final round was just enough to leave her ahead of Zilverberg, $7,402.62 to $7,392.86.

ROPING DIVISION

"In the third round, my thought at that point was, 'Just go get it roped and go get a time. Don't worry about everything else, just make sure you get it tied down,'" said Gambino, who also competed in the breakaway roping, team roping and barrel racing. "I did that and stayed in the average, and the average is really what helped me out. It wasn't the prettiest run, for sure, but it was a run."

For the second consecutive year, Gambino entered the Finals atop the all-around standings, but she had to settle for a runner-up finish yet again. Kelsie Chace from Cherokee, Oklahoma, finished second in the tie-down roping average and teamed with Finals all-around winner Jackie Crawford to win the team roping average in Waco to vault past Gambino and win the WPRA all-around title.

Despite a runner-up finish in the barrel racing, Gambino found herself $171 behind Chace, a near-miss she admits left a bad taste in her mouth.

"This year, not winning the all-around was more of a 'Debbie Downer' than winning the tie-down, and I hate saying that because I am ecstatic I did win that world title," said Gambino, who used three different horses in various events in Waco. "Last year, I went in first in the all-around and didn't get that done, so it was one of my big goals to go in there and win it this year. To realize I only lost it by $100 is pretty upsetting, but I'm really good friends with Kelsie and Kelsie just worked so hard doing what she loves to do and what she does for work, so I am proud that she won it."

Gambino, who attends Hill College in Hillsboro, Texas, also had a college rodeo to juggle during Finals weekend, so her attention and efforts were split. Coming up short again in the all-around will fuel her competitive fire, and Gambino heads toward her bright future balancing the emotions of enjoying her achievements while also hungering for more.

"I really feel like it's a dream sometimes, and I have to tell myself to pinch myself and wake up," Gambino said of her success. "I can't thank everybody enough who's helped me get there. I guess my mindset from here forward is, 'Two [championships] is not enough. We've got to get another one and another one.'

"I plan to keep working hard and doing the same things. I'm just going to keep chasing it and chasing it, and I think that's really the only way you can accomplish your goals and your dreams. It's all just amazing."

TRAIL BLAZER

Hampton Seeing the Fruits of Her Labor

By Ann Bleiker

What a year it was for women's breakaway roping in the rodeo industry and JJ Hampton is thankful she is still competitive and able to ride this wave of excitement.

"I have rodeoed for a long time," said the 17-time WPRA World Champion. "The event has grown leaps and bounds and I am just thankful I am still competitive and going to have the opportunity to maybe see some of the fruits of everyone's hard work to get the sport grown as much as it has. I am tickled about that."

Hampton of Stephenville, Texas, has put her fair share of hard work into getting the sport to where it is today. Growing up the daughter of the late Johnny Wayne Hampton and Barbara, granddaughter of the late Johnnie and Helen Hampton, and with Roy and Bill Duvall as her idols, the young Texas cowgirl was destined for greatness in the sport of rodeo.

"I started competing when I was 4-years old when I convinced my parents to let me enter the flag race in Granbury, Texas," noted Hampton. "I competed in barrels and poles growing up until I was in the fifth grade as it was difficult finding a good barrel horse and I wasn't the smallest, thinnest built person, so we decided roping and goat tying would be my thing.

"I started roping when I was probably 6-years old but it didn't go well for me when I started. In fact, my dad thought I would never catch a calf."

All that changed when her parents bought her a little horse named Shorty.

"Once I got Shorty it was like it all started working out for me,” recalled Hampton. “Shorty started by roping career.”

Since then, Hampton has made a name for herself inside the ranks of the WPRA winning a total of 17 world titles to date with six in the all-around category (1994-95, ’97-2000), three breakaway roping titles (1995-96, 1999), four team roping heading titles (1996-1999) and four tie-down roping titles (1994, ’97-99). In 2020, with the transition of the world title going to the money leader in the ProRodeo Breakaway Standings instead of how it has been determined in years past, Hampton would earn the WPRA National Championship title in breakaway having amassed more money than any WPRA breakaway roper at the co-approved events.

Hampton secured the 2020 WPRA National Championship title at the conclusion of the WPRA World Finals in Waco, Texas, Nov. 14-15 finishing the year with a record $87,973 to Kelsie Chace’s $81,812 in earnings. Chace had won the last three breakaway world titles prior to 2020. Hampton’s biggest wins came at the Johnny Wayne Hampton Memorial, ALL IN Breakaway Roping, and the Walker Co Fair Invitational Ladies Breakaway.

“The opportunities for us are amazing,” said Hampton, who also works full-time as a real estate broker. “Now if you are a high school roper and go to college, you now have something to look forward to after college instead of thinking your rodeo career is over unless you barrel race. You can do quite well as a breakaway roper. It is a wonderful opportunity that a breakaway roper can make a living breakaway roping and that is pretty cool.”

Hampton had a chance to not only win the WPRA National Champion Breakaway Title in 2020 but she also qualified for the inaugural National Finals Breakaway Roping with an outside shot at the world title. Unfortunately, the chips didn’t fall her way but she did win the 10th round to add to her legacy.

“If I am able to win another world title that would be great but if not I am good,” said Hampton earlier in the season. “I take each rodeo as it comes trying to win everyone I go to and will let the chips fall where they may.”

It will definitely be a year to remember for Hampton, who is married to Ricky Prince and has one son Kason Prince, who is carrying on the family roping tradition.

“I am so excited to be a breakaway roper and excited about the future of the sport. I am very thankful that I can still compete and thankful to all the women who worked their tails off having events, and those that started this wave to get breakaway roping bigger because it has taken a lot of us. It is the most awesome thing.”

ALL WOMEN'S CIRCUIT CHAMPIONS

Beginning in 2007, the WPRA opened qualifications to its World Finals Rodeo to circuit competitors as well as those in the top 15 of the world standings. As a result, for the first time, circuit standings were kept in all events, not just the barrel racing.
